Reasons For Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art fails to show or suggest the use of a backboard pad that includes a number of gel filled pads including first and second scapula pads, a buttocks pad, a heel pad, and headrest pad, inflatable lumbar and knee pads, and a base pad which support the above set of pads. In general, the use of a backboard pad is well known in the art, see the cited patents to Rose (US 5,088,137), Walton (US 5,819,746), and Muhanna (US 6,138,306) for details of such. In particular, the Rose pad is a plain uniplanar pad without any secondary pads, Walton shows a base pad with an integrated headrest pad, and Muhanna shows an inflatable backboard pad with integrated secondary support pads that are also inflatable. Secondary support pads for use upon a backboard are also well known in the art, see Brault et al (US 4,895,173) or Moody (US 4,655,206) for examples. These references fail to show or suggest the use of the claimed mixed set of secondary support pads. General purpose support pads that includes a base pad integrated with secondary pads are also well known in the art, such as the devices shown in Pierce (US 6,357,066), Proctor (US 5,785,669), and Jacobsen et al (US 4,688,283), none of which show or suggest the structure set forth in claim 1. Finally, secondary inflatable support pads attached to a mattress or the like are also well known in the art, see Hayes (US 2,470,398), Heimreid et al (US 4,893,367), and the UK Application to Iwasa (GB 2196245A) for examples. Hayes in particular shows the use of plural secondary inflatable support pads upon a mattress pad, however these pads are not set forth in the claimed arrangement, nor are they set forth as a mixed set of gel pads and inflatable pads. In view of the above the claims are considered to be allowable over the prior art of record..
